The Chiltan Rebellion

Buenos Ayres, Jan. 31.—The war news continues to filter from Chili into this republic, but it must be admitted that the information received ecute them. seems to come in the main from sources favorable to the insurgents and unfavorable to the Chilian government. Valdivia Port, Or Corral, and the seaport towns of Valdivia, sixteen miles from the mouth of the Callacalla river, is now blockaded by war vessels of the insurgents. The insurgents' warships are also blockading the Island of Chileo and the Chileo Archipelago; their ships are patroling the Gulf of Ancud, thus cutting off all communication between the island and the mainland.

One rebel vessel is lying at anchor off the capital of the Island of Chileo, and the insurgent marines from that vessel have occupied Ancud. The Chileo Archipelago consists of about sixty sma'l islands with a population of 80,000 souls. The insurgent's war ship, which anchored off Ancud recently, left that port in charge of the lister in a hotel, died this morning. marines; she has loaded and steamed away to capture another port.

While this vessel was absent the ship having the Government troops on board appeared off Ancud. She hoisted the British flag and tried to land the troops she had on board. The insurgents, however, detected the stratagem and opened fire upon the government vessel. The latter replied with a rapid fire of guns and smallarm fire, but after a sharp engagement the government vessel was disabled and had to leave the port of Ancud in the hands of the victorious iusurgents.

President Balmaceda is now said to have announced his willingness to negotiate for terms of peace with the rebels, who seem victorious on all sides. The stipulations insisted upon by the President if negotiations proceed are that the port of Valparaiso shall not be blockaded while the parleying continues. The rebels, it is night. When such papers as the Sacadded, insist that President Balmaceda resign. Collapse of an Insurance Company CHICAGO, Jan. 31.-The Consolidated Fire Insurance Company of this city assigned to-day. On its face the failure appears to be very bad, as the schedule of assets are but $13,295, while the liabilities are $100,000. The officers of the company and its attornev claim the collapse is due almost solely to what they term the arbitrary and unwarranted rulings of State Auditor C. W. Pavey, whom they say has determined to drive the "Mutual" out of existance. The company or ganized eighteen months ago and succeeded in consolidating the fire and life insurance company, and since its organization had done a big business it is asserted.

A Bloody Time Anticipated

CLARKSBURG (Va.), Jan. 31.-What promises to be a serious mountain war began Wednesday night in Doddridge county. A man named Perkins of Rulling's mill was arrested and charged with seduction. A mob, headed by Mose Smith, attacked the officers and liberated the prisoner. The officers went to West Union and secured warrants for the arrest of the ringleaders, summoned a large posse and returned to the mountains and surrounded the house in which the leader had taken refuge, and demanded his surrender. On being refused they opened fire, and fatally shot Smith and bis son-in-law, Cot terell. The fire was returned, killing Chief Deputy Goskins. Smith's son, a boy 13 years old, attacked Deputy Ramsay, cutting him severely. Smith was finally captured and taken in a wounded condition to the prison, but Perkins has not been recaptured.

Fifteen warrants have been issued for the parties connected with the riot, and the Sheriff, accompanied by many assistants, has left to endeavor to ex-

First-Class Performances at Popu lar Prices.

The Eunice Goodrich troupe will commence a three night's engagement at the Opera House Thursday ramento Bce speaks as follows, the company certainly has more than ordinary merit. The Bee of Jan. 24 says: The Pearl of Savoy was presented in an excellent manner at the Clunic Opera House last night by the Eunice Goodrich Company. It is the best play in the company's repertoire, and gives each player an admirable opportunity for displaying his talent. The successful week's engagement of the popular Goodrich Company will close with to-night's performance. This afternoon the company gave "Little Red Riding Hood," a musical burlesque, as a matinee performance There was an immense crowd of wom en and children in attendance. The line of people fairly blockaded the sidewalks in the vicinity of the Clunie Opera House. The crowd moving toward the matinee extended as far as the Metropolitan, four blocks away. Hundreds were unable to gain admission. Such a crush to attend a theatrical performance was never before witnessed in Sacramento.

Completing the Sea Wall.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—Governor Markham came down from Sacramento this morning to attend the meeting of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners, called for the purpose of adopting specifications for the completion of the section of the sea wall at the foot of Market street.

Before the Board met he was given an opportunity to inspect the water front in the tug Governor Irwin.

Chief Engineer Manson read at the meeting the specifications of the work, which it is estimated will cost $111,420. The caisson system was considered the best. The Governor entered into a discussion regarding the power given the Chief Engineer in carrying out the work. Blair, rising to a personal explanation, said he had observed the circulating in the newspapers of the country what purported to be a copy of an agreement alleged to have been entered into by Republican Senators with reference to the consideration of the Force bill, so called, or Elections bill, more properly speaking. The names of certain Senators had been given as having violated the agreement, and the allegation was made that all the other Republican Senators had signed the agreement without condition. As to that allegation, so broad as to include himself among those who signed that agreement without condition, he desired to say that he never signed such an agreement except with a clear qualification that it should not interfere with his efforts for the consideration of the Educa tional bill. Teller said he did not intend to pay attention to the newspaper reports, and as a general rule never gave any attention to statements made by newspaper correspondents. He only desired to say now that the statement pretty generally circulated that he had been in favor of the Force bill, so ment that the amendments were made to that bill in the committee whenever he asked to have them made Washington, Jan. 31.-The Presi- was also incorrect, and that the statement that he had ever sorreed to sun port the bill directly or indirectly was incorrect. ASSEMBLYMAN GROVES OF Humboldt county, has introduced a bill entitled "an Act to provide for assistant counsel in civil cases, wherein the State of Nevada is a tien."

Section 1 provides that no Board of County Commissioners in this counsel to assist in any civil actions, wherein the State of Nevada is a party, so as to make the same a charge against the county or the State, unless such employment shall first be approved in writing by the Attorney-General, the State Controller and the District Attorney of the county wherein said action is brought, or by a majority thereof.

Section 2 reads as follows: That when such employment is approved by said Attorney-General, the State Controller and District Attorney, or by a majority thereof, they shall fix the compensation for each assistant counsel, which shall be in such sum as they shall certify to be just and reasonable for the services to be performed, and in no case shall the allowance of compensation for such services exceed the amount thus fixed.

It will be seen that a check is put upon the County Commissioners in the employment of counsel, and the bill is a most excellent one and we hope it will pass.

THE USE OF MONEY.

Its Importance in the Transaction

Estimate of the Amount of Currency in Circulation in the United States ing Facilities.

It is a common saying that money is the ruling element in the life of the American people. Our foreign critics have urged it against us, and we too often are apt to give a tacit assent to the charge. But while, in reality, the accusation of being a a Nation given up to the pursuit and capture of dellars is manifestly unfounded, there are certain elements in our social cor ition which would tend to give color to such a view, at least in the eyes of those unacquaint wherein the State of Nevada is a ed with the real conditions of our social party, and regulating the mode of existence. The United States, taking such employment and compensa- it for all in all, says a writer in Once a Week, contains the most radically in dustrial and commercial people in the world. In no other land is idleness counted such a sin, and nowhere else State shall employ an attorney or does the force of example and the pressure of public opinion unite with such force to make every man, ever every woman, it might be said, a worker. Our millionaires in their social life may imitate the customs of the aristocracy of Europe. But even the Vanderbilts Astors and Goulds are workers. They do not, as is the case with the wealthy classes of Europe, commit the charge of their vast possessions to the care of stewards and agents. They give their business interests a close, personal supervision, and it is the rule to find in the third and fourth generation of American families of wealth, energetic, successful and busy men of affairs. Eliminate the offensive sense contained in the word money, or better still, translate it to its real significance—that is, business-and the alleged accusation is not only true but is something of which our people can be proud.

But, leaving aside this exceptional fact in our National life, that we have really no leisure class and very little need for one, there are some curious circumstances in the relations of the American people to this article of money. We talk about it a great deal, and we of course are forced to use it at every turn of the existence of each individual among us. But, after all, it is only a symbol. It is the measure with which things of value are compared, and the symbol which represents their commer-cial status. Money is the counters If President Harrison does not with which the great and exciting game think it necessary to throw some of business is played. One hears of the sop into the Farmers' Alliance money market, and learns from time to that the commodity it deals in is plentiful, or the reverse. It is even urged that there is not enough money to satisfy the actual requirements of the country, and Congress is called upon to meet the need by providing additional money. But the fact remains that apart from its use in retail business for satisfying the immediate requirements of our rast population, actual money is not the largest item in Pacific Coast man to the position the world of business. The largest transactions are uniformly effected by another set of counters, which reprewould be a good appointment, and value, either intrinsic or based on the credit of the Government.

The actual money in circularency among fifty millions of people, the amount seems very small in comparison with the aggregate value of the busisome outside work and giving the ness transactions of the country. The subject of reform much thought, real fact of the matter is that the bulk of our business is carried on through the highly artificial medium afforded by the use of banks and the facilities which they afford in the way of drafts and checks. All the great transactions of commerce and speculation are effected through banks. OUR COLUMN.

These Are the Books

We Are Giving Away.

This book contains 480 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy pa-per and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

It is different from all other works ever published. First — It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when a person gets sick.

All similar books tell what to do if you know what the disease is. This book tells you HOW TO DETECT THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it.

No other Book Published does this.

Second-When a person is really attacked by a dan-gerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is: "Send for a competent physician at once." But in all ordinary cases, such as can be easily cured, it gives full directions for treatment.

Third-It is not confined to the practice used by any one class of physicians; but it gives, separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different schools of medicine, and in ALL CASES the PRE-SCRIPTIONS ARE MADE by the MOST EMINENT MEN in their respective modes of practice This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what med-ical school they prefer.

There are three chapters in the "Family Physician" which are worthy of special mention, namely, those on "Diseases of Women," "becases of Infants" and "Care of the sick."

The first of these is a model of its kind. It is chaste in language, contains no disgusting pictures for children to happen on and be overcurious about, and taken altogether is the most practical, sen ble and straight-forward treatise upon this delicate subject that has ever been printed.

this deficate subject that has ever been printed.

This chapter alone is worth many times the cost of the book to every mother, even if it had to be purchased at its regular price.

The other chapters referred to are equally well written and valuable, see "Our Plan" on 4th page.

CARSON LETTER.

The Jones Banquet at the Arling-ton—A Gossipy Letter from the State Capital.

CARSON, Jan. 30, 1891. EDITOR GAZETTE: The second week first, with but little accomplished save the all-absorbing duty of electing the U. S. Senator and Warden of the State Prison, both of which facts have been fully detailed in the press. Jones as U.S. Senator was complimented by the almost unanimous vote of the joint Houses, and McCullough as Warden of the prison received as great an endorsement.

BANQUETING AND FRASTING

Was the order of yesterday, and can better be expressed in the words of Sam Davis of the Appeal, as given by him at the Jones entertainment last night. Sam said that he had lived in many of the States of the Union and in many towns, but never in all his experience had he attended three banquets in one day, as he had that day in Carson; that he had, upon coming down town early in the morning, met the Hon. Wm Thompson of Washoe, who had been a successful litigant in a suit against the State, and Thompson was celebrating. He at once sympathized with Thompson and joined him in the celebration. Later in the day he found numerous friends of Hon. Theo. Winters celebrating the Hon. Theo. Winters celebrating the complimentary vote that had been given the latter, so his sympathies at once went out to Winters and he again celebrated. In the evening he had run into the banqueting, party celebrating the re-election of the Hon. J. P. Jones as U. S. Senator, and his sympathies were again taxed and he was still celebrating. Wine flowed all day like water and the day was generally one of rejoicing.

erally one of rejoicing. AT THE JONES BANQUET,

Under the direction of Hon. Evan Williams, wit and eloquence were the prime factors, and the evening was spent pleasantly and joyfully. Governor Colcord, Hons. Thomas Wren, A. C. Cleveland, Frank Murphy, Sam Davis, J. C. Haines and others were the speakers.

THE PRESS

Was answered by Sam Davis, who, in his usual funny manner, kept the guests in a roar. He said the press was in a demoralized condition in Nevada—financially embarrassed. He gave the Supreme Court a lick from the shoulder by critizising the system of accepting typewritten transcripts and other documents; that the printer had no show; that State officers used rubber stamps, etc.; and that things were getting bad for the printer. He said that he had taken out his first paper in Carson; viz., the Appeal, but that from present prospects it would be as doubtful about him takwould be as doubtful about him tak-ing out his second paper as it was with his friend Yerington. It was on the program for the Hon. M. D. Foley to respond to the toast of

THE LADIES. But through some little modesty or diplomacy on the part of the gentlemen, he gracefully retired and that old war-horse, Hon. Thos. Wren, was called upon to respond. The latter, in opening his speech, in substance said: "That while he felt complimentin substance

There is no danger of a cold resulting in pneumonia when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used as directed "for a severe cold." It effectually counteracts and arrests any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. This fact was wholly proven in thousands of cases during the epidemic of influenza last winter. For sale by Shoemaker & Co., druggists.

He gave the origin of the word lady, from the old German and Anglo Sax on, and continuing his remarks he took a wide range of the subject which created much merriment. He turned to Senator Stearns, whom he said did to Senator Stearns, whom he said did not believe there was anything in it, but that his friend Foley would, he was satisfied, bear him out. Wren then paid a glowing tribute to the wives and mothers of the land, and closed with a burst of eloquence that was received with a purst of eloquence that was received with applause.

The party adjourned at about midnight, and Carson has again assumed the tranquility for which she is noted. Now that the principle events of the session have been attended to, it may be proper to look with some curiosity as to what will follow.

It is worthy of note that last even-ing after the adjournment several of the members could be seen with their

Of course business has called them away, and their return will be within the requisite time provided by law, or so they can sign the pay roll. Little was done to day in eitner house, the bilarity of last evening deterring the Honorables from assembling promptly, and the business requiring calm and thoughtful deliberation, the members' heads were not in a condition to transact anything of a profound character. The flags are at half-mast and the Mint building is draped in deep mourning, owing to the sudden death of Secretary Windom of the Treasury. THE LEGISLATURE

Adjourned to-day until Monday morning, and Carson will again be left to grumble over the idio syn crasies of the Nevada Legislator until he return next week. XXX.

The anniversary ball given by Amity Lodge No. 8, of the Knights of Pythias, at the Pavilion, and celebrating the of the Legislature ends much like the institution of Amity Lodge in 1875, proved to be a marked success in every particular, and reflected great credit upon the Knightly entertainers and the managers in particular, who all exerted themselves in extending hospitalities to strangers and friends alike and fully succeeded in making the ball the most delightful social event of the season.

THE PAVILION

Was handsomely decorated with wreaths and festoons of evergreens which were brought into relief by an abundance of bunting, and the effect was further augmented by a lavish display of Knightly trappings, swords, helmets and banners of the Lodge, all in peaceful repose and reminding one of Longfellow's "Armory at Springfield."

THE GRAND MARCH

Occurred at 9 o'clock and was led by the Uniform Rank, all handsomely attired in their brilliant uniforms, and accompanied by ladies also attired in the handsomest apparel that has decked the ballrooms of Reno during this winter. The appearance as pre-sented in the grand march was very attractive and gave an eclat to the event which assured success from the start and won encomiums from all.

THE MUSIC Was by Hyman Fredrick's band and proved the best of the season, and it can be said without flattery that the dancers, all with universal accord, confessed that to it was due the crowning success of the very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

THE PROGRAM

Of dances was well selected, consisting of only eighteen numbers, but it displayed excellent judgment on the part of the committee of arrangements, and in fact proved them to be old hands

THE DANCERS

Were sufficient in number to fill fiftee sets, which filled the hall sufficiently to make it interesting, but never crowded beyond comfort. A SUICIDE.

Stranger Deliberately Place His Head on the Rail and is Rua Over by an Engine.

Alex Arthur, engineer of engine No. 84, when about four miles east of the Humboldt House Friday, he noticed to what he supposed to be a track walker. The man was stooping down in the act of fixing a spike or plate on the rail, and just before the engine reached him he looked up and deliberately solvent and gentle stimulating properties, is placed his head across the rail, and in a moment his head was severed from his body, his brains being bespattered all over the front end of the engine.

Protect Your Health.

Cold and moisture combined have a tororising effect on the bodily organs, ar the digestive and secretive proc apt to be more tardily performed in winter than in the fall. The same is true, also, of the excretory functions. The bowels are often sluggish, and the pores of the skin throw off but little waste faster at this season. The system, therefore, requires opening up a little, and also purifying and regulating, and the safest, surest and most thorough tonic and alterative that can be used for these purposes is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Persons who wish to escape the rheumatic twinges, the dyspeptic agonies, the painful disturbances of the bowels, the billious attacks, and the nervous visitations, so common at this time of the year, will do well to reinforce their system with this renowned vegetable is omachic and invigorant. It improves the appetite, strengthens the stomach, cheers the sperits, and renovates the whole physique. the excretory functions. The bowels are tuddled. There is a prevailing belief that the Jones banquet at Carson night before last was the scene of some excessive convivialty and some episodes that will not stand publication; but the following, related of a country member who was not accustomed to the hangings of his curtain at the Arlington Hotel, is amusing enough to relate and will perhaps illustrate the con-dition some of the banqueters were in when they retired for the night: The member above referred to had drank numerous toasts, and when he stumbled into his room and disrobed he made an effort to pull down the curtain, but, as he let go of the chord, it disappeared with a snap that startled his bewildered and befuddled senses and left him staring out on the moonlit scene of the Mint yard in full view of the passers-by, robed in classic at-tire, that was rather scant for a digni-fied member of an honorable body. He stooped down and searched the floor and under his bod for the missing curtain, and finally opened the wan-dow and bawled at a possing stranger to throw up the curtain which he said had flown out the window. The night clerk was summoned and sent to his room, where he found the curtain rolled up at the top of the window as tight as the honorable member who had lost it.

A DOCTOR'S REBUKE.

Dr. King, the eminent medical writer, in a learned disquisition on our national com plaint, constipation, says: -

The great quantity of eathartic pills; etc.; which are taken by the people of this country are productive of immensely more miscalef than is generally suspected. True, the physic unloads the lowels, but its action tends to diminish the tone of the intestines; so that, instead of removing costiveness, it to fill just such a contingency as the doctor's arraignment anticipates, viz.: instead of beso certain a relief in constipation that it has been given away to hundreds, not to be paid for unless it was of positive benefit. It replaces constipation almost immediately with a natural easy habit, and is so mild that, unlike drastic purgatives, it can be taken indefinitely with perfect safety.

GORMANDIZING,

or overeating, or the partaking of too rich and indigestible food, is a common cause of discomfort and suffering. To immediatly relieve the stomach and bowels from such overloading, a full dose of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets is the best remedy. They operate gently, yet thoroughly and without griping, nausea, or other unpleasant effects.

If the too free indulgence in such intemperate cating has deranged digestion, causing dyspepsia and billousness, attended with a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in mouth in the morning, on arising, drowsiness after meals, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity and hypochondria—then you need to follow up the use of the "Pellets" with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to tone up the stomach, invigorate the liver, and set all the processes of digestion at work. While curing indigestion, it purifies the blood, cleansing the system from all humors and blood-poisons—no matter of what name or nature, or from what cause arising. There is nothing similar to it in composition or approaching it in results. Therefore, don't be duped and induced to take some substitute, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit.

THE GRIP WE HAVE TO GAR BY.

For each and all in ways along, It matters not if weak or strong. For each and if weak or a literal of the control of the way be poor, or strewn with gold. The way be poor, or strewn with gold. There is a grip to carry.

It may be gilded, or be worn, It's all the same, it must be borne, There's no escape, no use to try,
The better way is shoulder high
The grip we have to carsy,

Our brother just across the way Seems highly favored day by day; We murmur at our lot and pine, Tathink he has the best of wine, And has no grip to carry.

But ah! his grip is tinsel-tipped, His wine too bitter to be dipped; We can not lift the weight he bears, We can not know another's cares, Till we his grip would carry.

To each and all is stinted out The one adopted for the route, If large or small, if old or new, "Tis suited, friend, to me, to you. The grip we have to carry.

Then let us march with shout and song, 'Twill make the way less hard and long, The burden borne will lighter grow, We have a grip to carry.

BROTHER BEN.

The Queer Fancies of a Harmless Lunatic.

He had so much dignity, this old man, so much manner that I had been quite impressed by him.

We had walked up together from the post-office several times, and as I boarded near his house I often saw him in passing, and thus we struck up an odd set of friendship, for I was twenty while he was nearly seventy.

We used to talk on various subjectspolitics, religion, the people of the town and the geology of the surrounding country, and I found him well informed and liberal in his views, and, better than all, tolerant of the opinions of a young man.

I supposed that this tolerance impressed me the more because, owing to my youth, I had been recently rather snubbed by some of my male relations, and on that account had come to try my fortunes among strangers.

So it was that when this courtly old gentleman showed me such marked and polite attention I felt rather flattered and greatly comforted thereby. I never had met any other of his family, although I understood from him that he had a wife and an elderly daughter who lived with him in the great mansion half hidden from the street by a growth of trees, and shrubs.

I often stopped to talk with him at his gate, and he had invited me in more than once, but I always refused, until one day he said, abruptly: "Do you know that I have taken such a fancy to you that I want Ben to see you. Ben is my brother, you know; he lives with He is not quite right at times, a little flighty, perhaps, but you won't

I saw that he was thoroughly in earnest, and to please him I said that I would go in and see Ben.

As we stepped upon the broad plazza my friend hesitated. "Just a word, please, before we go in. Ben is very sensitive about his-his-troubles. He is just my age; we are twins, in fact, and physically he is perfect—yes, perfect—but there is something wrong with his head. He is all right on some things, you know; but he has some queer fancies, poor fellow." The tears came into his eyes and he cleared his throat with a little cough as he opened the door and ushered me into a broad, handsomely-furnished hall. He led the way from this into a cheerful sitting-room and excused himself for a While he was gone I looked about the room. There were quaint chairs, an odd stand or two, a rosewood cabinet and an old-fashioned piano with mother-of-pearl keys; on the walls were a few portraits in oil and some good engravings of an old style. The thing that struck me most, however, was a tall pier-glass let into the wall between two windows. From the bottom of this, up to within a few inches of the top, it was painted over with a thick coating of dark paint, and this was ornamented by a landscape stiffly painted in rather crude colors There was another and smaller mirror in the frame of the clock, and this had been treated in a similar manner, little gleams of bright showing here and there through the dark paint. I reasoned that the surface of the quicksilver had been marred either by time or by dampness and that this paint had been put on to cover up these defects, and as I was gazing at the ugly landscape the old gentleman returned, bringing his wife and daughter, to whom he introduced me.

Both ladies had lovely and refined faces which differed but little from each other. Time had marked the lines deeper upon that of the elder woman, and her hair was white, but both wore the same sad, anxious expression, as though some great sorrow was hanging "Mother, & have brought my young friend in to see Ben," said the old man, and I noticed that a meaning glance passed from the ladies as the elde replied in a pleading voice: "Father, Ben isn't so well to-day. Hadn't you better wait till some other time?" -no, mother; Ben's all right. All he needs is a little cheerful company." With these words my friend left the room, motioning me to follow him.

We went across the hall to a small room furnished very simply. There were some cases of books, a leather lounge, and a couple of arm-chairs drawn up before a large mirror.

Walking proudly to the mirror which reflected his erect form and handsome face the old man introduced me to "Brother Ben." Of course I understood it all in a moment, the painted looking-glasses, the sad-faced women, and their reluctance to allow a stranger to intrude upon their sorrow. It was a complete surprise to me, for I had never suspected the least thing wrong with my friend, and I had be-lieved in his brother Ben without a shadow of doubt. Luckily the ladies entered then, and by their tact relieved me from my embarrassment.

The old man told me how much he and Ben enjoyed each other's society, and he complimented Ben upon his ap-pearance. "You are looking well, Ben, old boy, and I am pleased to see you in such good spirits to-day."

Soon the daughter suggested that Ben might be tired, and I took the hint and made my adieux. As I bowed myself out the younger lady said: 'We see no-body now, you know, but father enjoys your company, and if you would stop in to see him sometimes you would be doing us a great favor;" and I promised that I would come.

I went quite often and nearly always was taken to see Brother Ben, because he had taken such a liking to me, the old man said.

I learned from the ladies that Ben had been drowned when he was a boy, but of late the hallucination that he was living and was insane had been fixed in his brother's mind.

One day my friend told me that he was worried about Ben. "He seems to be failing a little," said he. "I fancy that his mind is less clear than it was. I have noticed when talking with him he loses the thread of the conversation oftener than formerly."

He was right. "Brother Ben" was failing. It was pathetic to hear the old man say: "Ben, my boy, you are a trifle pale to-day;" or: "You should take better care of yourself, brother; you think too much and sleep too little." I had a private interview with the ladies one day, and we decided that "Ben" would be better for a little trip -so the mirror was removed and we told the old man that his brother had gone for a change of air. But he worried about Ben and missed him so that we had the mirror hung again and told him that Ben had come back.

He was overjoyed; he hastened to the mirror, "Ben, dear old Ben, I have missed you so. I am so glad that you came back," he said brokenly, patting the glass gently as he spoke. "And you'll stay with me always now, won't you. Ben? You won't leave me again, for we haven't long to stay now, you and I, and something tells me that we will both go together, old fellow." He failed rapidly after this and soon he could only with difficulty get to his old seat before the glass. "Ben, we're almost there," he would say, and then he would ask us if it were not pitiful to see Ben looking so

Indeed it was, and our tears would start as we saw the reflection of the trembling limbs and vacant, wandering

The end came at last, peaceful and calm. He had been in bed some days in a sort of half-stupor. He roused one night and called: "Mother." "Yes, father, I am here," she said, gently. "I am going home now, and Ben's going, too. I am glad I can take him with me, for he is so feeble and so flighty that he wouldn't know how to get along without me, poor old boy, and then he might bother you, mother, if I wasn't here to sort of look after him." He nestled down among the pillows looking so happy and contented. "Yes, Ben, we are going together, just as we came," he whispered, and in a few min-utes he was home with Ben.-Marie More Marsh, in Chicago Times.

STONEWALL JACKSON'S FIDDLE. It Was More Difficult to Master Than Mathematics

When Jackson first entered West Point he was regarded as a remarkably stupid and green youth, General Whit ing, who afterward served in the Confederate army, was then a cadet in the class above Jackson's and was appointed to ask him some questions in mathematics, in accordance with the custom which then prevailed at the military academy. Whiting thought him at first remarkably dull, but no-Whiting thought ticed that he studied and worked with dogged persistency. The class of which Wilcox and Whiting were members was graduated just prior to the Mexican war. Several of the young officers were in Washington on their way to Mexico, and on the night of their arrival they were invited to go with Jefferson Davis then a member of the House, to a reception given at the White House. Later both Davis and T. J. Jackson turned their faces toward the Rio Grande. At the close of the war Jackson ranked every member of his class and was a Brevet Major, and was stationed on Governor's Island, near New York. Whiting, Wilcox and a number of young officers were visiting New York, and when several brother officers from Governor's Island called on them Whiting asked:

"What has become of Tom Jackson;

how is he getting on?" "Badly, badly," replied the officer; "since he has stopped fighting he has taken to fiddling. He came over to this city a few weeks ago and bought a fiddle, several bows and a pile of resin. You will remember at West Point there was no music in his soul, no poetry, no relaxation, nothing but hard application to his text-books. So his new fad makes it awful for us. Every minute he can spare he devotes to practicing on the fiddle, and the sounds which fill the barracks in his vicinity are beyond description-almost beyond endurance."

"Be patient," said Whiting, with a smile; "if Tom Jackson is determined to master his violin you'll listen to a second Paganini before he gives up." But Whiting's prediction was not verified. Jackson never became a musician.—Chicago Evening Journal.

Not Quite the Same. Mrs. Glibe—I think your new house is a delightful one, Mr. Jones. Only yesterday I was telling my husband that I the ought you were a very level headed man.

Johnny (interrupting)—No, ma, you didn't say quite that. You said flat headed.—Munsey's Weekly.
